

IFW

Dear Sirs:

I have sent you drawings with constructional supplements to Appl. No: 10/644,618. You received these drawings on 3/19/04, but they, for some reason, don't appear in the published materials. If there is a separate fee for the supplementing materials to be published, please inform me of the amount required to be paid, and I will send you a check.

Sincerely, Anatoliy Rudenko

Attaching Tie

Constructional supplements to Appl. No: 10/644,618 Filed 08/12/2003

Description of the embodiments

The leather strap 30 slides along the pressing slat 22 in spots/places 24, 25 on an unlocked clip Fig 7 (Appl. No. 10/644,618, Filed: 08/21/2003). In order for this not to occur, the construction of the pressing slat of the clip has to be changed, as shown on new drawings: 52—fixer.

During the process of assembly Fig 7 (new drawings), the fixer 52 is passed, with some force, through the slot 25 of the strap 30. In the process the slot 25 will extend and shirk to the needed size due to the properties of leather.

As a result, the fixer 52 will prevent the sliding of the leather strap 30 in the spots 24 and 25 along the pressing slat 22, when the clip is unlocked.

The term "Hairclip" is only used to describe the principle used to attach a tie. The clip for the tie must be manufactured especially for its purposes, be made of thicker materials and have different measurements.
